

Job Specification – Research Editorial Intern

ING is a global bank with a strong European base. Our over 57,000 employees serve around 38 million customers, corporate clients and financial institutions in over 40 countries. Our purpose is to empower people to stay a step ahead in life and in business. This purpose guides us in everything we do.

Our products include savings, payments, investments, loans and mortgages in most of our retail markets. For our Wholesale Banking clients, we provide specialised lending, tailored corporate finance, debt and equity market solutions, payments & cash management and trade and treasury services. Customer experience is what differentiates us and we're continuously innovating to improve it. We also partner with others to bring disruptive ideas to market faster.

'Do your thing' is our new brand direction and our first global tagline. It articulates our purpose and our promise to make banking frictionless. It's about encouraging people to do more of the things that move them and their business. 'Do your thing' is not about irresponsible behaviour but about people being free to live the life they want to live, knowing that they will make their world a little better for it.

Job Title:	Research Editorial Intern
Business/Function:	Research Editorial
Line Manager:	Owen Thomas
Core Hours of Work:	Full Time – 9.00 am – 5.00 pm
Duration	9 month paid internship programme running from October 2022 to July 2023
Status:	Temporary
Required start date	October 2022

Job Description

The ING London Internship Programme: A structured programme aimed at university students and recent graduates. The programme will offer first-hand experience of what a career at ING is like by giving you an opportunity to observe and get involved in the day to day running of the business. An internship at ING will allow you to explore your interests and develop your professional skills and capabilities.

You would be working with the Research department's Editorial team. So, this isn't a role for you if you want to get down and dirty writing research and analysing economic trends and developments. It is far more a Communications role. The Editorial team is responsible for making the work of our economists look good and is compliant. We also make short videos and do podcasts. All our free-to-air articles and reports can be found at our THINK website, at www.ing.com/THINK

Essentially, we're the newsroom of the economics department and to join us you need to have perfect English, be able to analyse readership stats so we can inform our economists what's working and what's not. And you'll need good skills in managing our third-party partners who also publish our material. You should also be a whiz at social media.

Job Responsibilities

- Contribute and co-ordinate content for the THINK website, home to ING's economic and financial analysis. This includes managing the creation of flagship weekly/monthly economic and FX updates.
- Assist the Global Head of Editorial to build-up the team's social media presence.
- Manage the relationship with third party websites which reproduce our content
- You'll be responsible for compiling the editorial agenda.
- Perform ad hoc research as required for the team's economists and FX strategists for articles and presentations
- Analyse key trends in readership numbers.
- Working with the other interns, you'll help put together the 'meet the manager' sessions amongst ING's senior management team along with organising network events and product sessions.

- You'll think of ideas for charity events for the London office and taking them on and making them happen!

Your Work Environment

ING Research is an award-winning team of economists, strategists and analysts working in 14 offices around the world. Their goal is to develop client business by providing quality macroeconomic analysis and trade recommendations on both developed and emerging markets. As well as a full range of research publications, the team is active in direct marketing to customers across the globe. The Research team is a key part of ING's public face and their analysts regularly feature in print media and on television (Bloomberg, CNBC and BBC, amongst others).

The Editorial team consists of three former journalists and three Supervisory Analysts who make sure the research we produce is accurate, is written in plain English and doesn't break any laws; we're highly regulated. We also have two Desk Top Publishers who make fancy graphics and charts.

Career Potential

This role provides an excellent opportunity to gain an introduction to working within the department, with the potential to apply for permanent roles as available.

Who Are We Looking For?

Required Skills

Essential

A recent graduate or looking to do a university placement year.

Must have the right to work in the UK for the whole duration of the proposed internship

Advanced IT skills: Excel, Word, PowerPoint.

Social media experience.

Someone with a professional and confident manner.

Somebody who's just as happy to perform mundane but essential tasks while coming up with exciting ideas as to how we can do things better.

A team player who can develop strong relationships with clients, candidates and colleagues.

Someone who will also play a big part in the intern team and represent the department well.

Ability to execute tasks independently and manage/prioritise workload.

Excellent verbal and written communication skills, alongside strong numeracy

Attention to detail and ability to work to fixed deadlines

Desirable

Experience of video production

Evidence of regular written contributions, such as blogs or articles for publication

What Type Of People Are We Looking For

Creating a differentiating experience starts with ING's culture: entrepreneurial, open, collaborative, innovative and energetic. Who we are and how we work are set out in our Orange Code. Our values are the non-negotiable promises we make to the world. The principles we stick to no matter what are: we are honest, we are prudent, and we are responsible. Our behaviours are the commitments we make to each other and the standards by which we measure performance. These behaviours are what set us apart. We are looking for people who apply these behaviours: you take it on and make it happen, you help others to be successful and you are always a step ahead.

With integrity above all, the Orange Code is our manifesto describing the values and behaviours that define us and what it means to be ING.

Click here to find out further information on this intern programme and how to apply